EU Aid Volunteers

We Care, We Act

Sending Organization: ASPEM

Requested Profile: Junior EU Aid Volunteer – Community-based Development - Agroecology

Country: Peru – Ayacucho

Period: 1 year (July 2019-June 2020)

Hosting Organization: Aprodeh

Project description:

APRODEH has developed a long relationship with victims of political violence accompanying their complaints of human rights violations from legal defence, political and social advocacy to achieve progress in the search for justice, truth, reparation and memory. In this process, several achievements have been obtained in quite long periods, especially in the search for justice.

In the past few years APRODEH started working with rural communities in Toraya in the field of agroecology, as their memories of the internal armed conflict are linked to their needs for productive development. APRODEH supports its initiative with productive technical training and strengthening of its social capacities. This work has had difficulties but above all achievements for this community that has also impacted other communities in the district. This has allowed today to implement a public district development policy based on a consultation on their proposals and agro productive expectations of each community; their ventures have been made visible, valuing their reconstruction and resilience efforts based on their cultural traditions, among others. Currently, their cultural identity has been positively strengthened, together with their productive and social capacities from agroecology, which is tied with their ancestral knowledge and Andean culture. The positive experience of Toraya is being replicated in the Populated Center of Culluchaca (Huanta) Ayacucho and in Capaya District (Apurimac).

The work is still in an initial moment. The first year has been achieved to gain confidence with the population, also a baseline and participatory definition of implementation priorities in communal plots. It has also established a relationship with the secondary school and supported several of its main needs to improve its production and expand its crops considering that they have little access to water and the child population suffers from anemia. Partnerships have been established with state and civil society institutions that have a local presence.

Operational details & security context:

The region of Ayacucho is located in the southern highlands of Peru; Huamanga is the capital of the region, where the Regional Government and the majority of the most important social, economic and political actors of the region are located.

The village of Culluchaca belongs to the province of Huanta, it is 2 hours from Huamanga, the road to Huanta is paved, from there to Culluchaca there is a dirt road. During the rainy season the field work is not prioritized.

The region of Ayacucho was deeply affected by the violence of the 1980s, which caused, in addition to the high number of victims, heavy social and economic problems. In spite of the improvement generated by the restoration process, its impact still remains weak.

Tasks:

Strengthening the agricultural abilities of the rural communities affected by political violence by:

- Elaborating and applying training methodologies in agroecology.
- Collecting information and systematizing agro ecological ancestral traditional activities.
- Advising and training on modern technologies, consistent with traditional agricultural systems that provide to their adaptation to climate change.
- Developing field visit report for agricultural activities.
- Training teachers and youngsters of Huanta on healthy food and organic growing.
- Supporting advocacy actions, at political and social level, to promote agroecology.
- Supporting visibility actions to promote the diffusion of flagship products and the access to a wider market and to influence the approval of local and regional policies.

Required competences:

- Ideal with experience in climate change.
- Knowledge about Latin America.
- Ideal knowledge about Peru.

The selection process is based on equal opportunities for all people and all candidatures will be treated similarly.

Minimum Requirements:

- Degree in agronomy or environmental studies
- Specialization in agroecology or relevant experience in the field
- Experience in working with youth and adult in training/educational activities
- Good command of written and spoken Spanish and English

Learning Opportunities:

APRODEH will propose various training spaces for the volunteer, organized by the institution or by other partner institutions. The work at APRODEH will require constant self-training, providing spaces within the work schedule for reading key documents. Volunteers will receive information about short courses, usually related to Peruvian culture.

Working conditions:

APRODEH Ayacucho Regional office is located in Huamanga. It has 3 members and normally there is also the support of 1 foreign volunteer and 2 national volunteers.

The daily working schedule is from 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m. and from 3:00 p.m. until 6:00 p.m. Volunteers will participate in the preparation and execution of field activities that involve 2 to 3 day stays in the communities. The local authorities and Culluchaca municipality usually offer the use of the communal house or district municipality facilities for the development of activities and accommodation with access to basic services, they also offer spaces for holding meetings and workshops. In case field activities require a greater time dedication, the volunteer will accrue hours that will be recovered at the most convenient time in agreement with the organization.

APRODEH office has all the basic requirements for the implementation of the volunteer tasks and will cover all expenses related to the working activities. APRODEH will assign a tutor to guide the volunteer professional and personal performance from the establishment of a work plan, goals and products to achieve. The person responsible for local volunteering will be available to support the volunteer performance and the solution of any unforeseen problems or problems that may arise. APRODEH will also offer opportunities for dialogue and training on various topics, including safety and health.

Living conditions:

The volunteer will live in Huamanga when not in the field. Huamanga has an airport and it can be accessed by bus or plane. It is a medium-sized city, the city centre has a characteristic historical architecture and traditional Andean cultural heritage; art in Ayacucho, especially music and crafts, is recognized at national level.

The population is mostly bilingual, with Quechua as its mother tongue and mainly dedicated to agriculture. The culture is ancestral: social, medicinal and agricultural traditions are kept alive.

Huamanga has internet access, medical facilities, markets, good restaurants, little cultural life but there are options for outdoor activities and walks in the countryside.
